

FALL NATURE FINDINGS

Fall is a wonderful time of year to explore nature, and the Nature Park is a great place to start your exploration. But remember, this scavenger hunt could also be taken to your local park or even just on a walk around your neighborhood. Bundle up, put on your raingear, and start discovering nature in the fall!

- Something that is crawling
- A good home for a squirrel
- A good spot for an owl to build its nest
- Something a bird would eat
- Something that a deer might eat
- Something that has been eaten by an insect
- A cone from an evergreen tree
- A tree that is younger than you
- A tree that that's too big to fit your arms around
- Something smooth that would fit in this circle
- Something rough that would fit in this circle
- Something soft that would fit in this circle
- Something flying, floating, or falling
- A fern frond that is longer than your arm
- Something that you have never seen before
- Something that smells good
- Something that smells stinky
- A mushroom growing on a tree
- A twig shaped like a letter
- Three different colors (besides green)
- A leaf that is longer than it is wide

